SEEKING KNOWLEDGE AND ACCEPTANCE

The Sudbury Special Education Advisory Council (SSEAC) invites you to:

Research and Strategies for Parents and Teachers of Children with Learning Disabilities

Thursday, October 15th, 2009
Sudbury Grange Hall
326 Concord Road
Sudbury, MA 01776
7:00-9:00 PM

The presentation will focus on how current knowledge about learning disabilities can guide parents and teachers working with children with special learning needs. We will discuss strategies for children with reading/writing disabilities, attention disorders, and executive function deficits. Autism spectrum disorders will also be considered.

Joan Axelrod is a psychoeducational diagnostician in private practice in Lexington, MA. She does evaluations of students with learning differences. Her evaluations focus on understanding how a student's cognitive and information processing skills impact on their academic functioning. She also consults to Sudbury and other local public and private schools about assessment and programming for students with learning disabilities and other special learning needs.

Visit <http://fc.sudbury.k12.ma.us/~sseac/> for directions.
Free and open to the general public.
